MODERN DANCERS Gail Decker, Caroline Kosky and Blain Chambers will perform tonight 7 p.m. in the Recital Hall as a part of Jazz Week. The Impressions Concert will be presented at 8 p.m.

Jazz Week Activities:

Ensemble, Dancers Will Perform

Fighting tonight's Impression Concert will be the Jazz Ensemble and three modern dancers. Beginning at 7 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Fine Arts Center, the concert will feature jazz as a base for the "now" sounds in music and explain the relationship of jazz and rock music. Admission is free.

Campbell, co-director of the BYU jazz ensemble, will narrate the evening of music while J. Dayley, the other director, will be directing the Jazz Ensemble.

Decker, Blain Chambers and Caroline Kosky will perform the dances for the concert. They will dance to the music of the Jazz Ensemble, is currently teaching children's and modern dance at BYU.

With Company used to perform with the New York Dance Company and has arranged choreography for the productions of "Rip Van Winkle," "Masked and "Brigadoon."

armed with 1960 Census data, KU assistant professor and an associate are preparing to debunk the myths that the "rich" are richer and the poor and "have children."

Philip R. Kunz and Dr. B. Brinkerhoff, who is on leave this year to the University of Minnesota and Macalester College, will present the paper, "The Rich Get Children?" to the National Council on Family Relations in Washington D.C. this week. They also will be publishing "Infertile Childlessness By or the Destruction of a Rural Belief" in the "Journal of Marriage and the Family" in the future.

The presentation this week will show that while poor families have relatively more children in higher income families, the opposite is true when comparing people with the same education and occupation.

by the Jazz Ensemble and modern dance group. Highlighting the week's events is the Craig Hundley Trio concert Friday night.

Chambers, a BYU senior and modern dance teacher, will perform to Wes Montgomery's rendition of "Up and At It." Chambers has performed at the New York World's Fair, the San Diego Starlite, and received a dance scholarship to the University of Missouri at Kansas City Conservatory of Music.

"Summer Jazz" by Mancini will provide the music for the final dance, Caroline. An English major who also teaches modern dance, Caroline won the Orchestral Student Scholarship which allowed her to work with Richard Jones, Eva Von Gensey and Eugene Loring.

Ensemble Rocks, Too

The Jazz Ensemble, under the direction of Newell Dayley, will play selections from Count Basie, "Never My Love," and various rock numbers. According to Campbell, the Ensemble is leaning toward the sounds of Blood, Sweat and Tears.

Official BYU Statement Indicts Stanford Policy

In a policy statement issued last night, BYU indicted Stanford University's decision to end all ties with the Provo school.

The statement reads as follows: "We at Brigham Young University think it is unfortunate that Stanford University has openly announced a policy of discrimination against BYU and its student body, both members and non-members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. In his announcement, Stanford President Pitzer stated that his school would not schedule any further meetings with BYU, athletically or non-athletically.

"The Stanford policy to drop BYU on a religious issue is an unfair one as it would be for Stanford to drop Notre Dame or Southern Methodist because their sponsoring religious organizations have doctrine contrary to the beliefs of certain pressure groups on the Stanford campus.

"Those persons who arrive at the conclusion that BYU is discriminating should, in all fairness, keep two things in mind: first, to look into the facts before making an inaccurate and unfair accusation; and second, to be sure they do not practice the very thing against BYU that they accuse BYU of doing.

"There is no policy at BYU which discriminates against any race or religion in any way. We have never refused to play any team regardless of the race, religion, or color of the opposing team members, and have never attempted to dictate the racial composition of opposing teams.

"It has never been our policy at BYU to retaliate against unfair accusations, but we believe that the public is entitled to know our policy as it actually is, and not as it is interpreted by those who may not have taken the time to study it.

"Stanford, and all other universities, if they check into BYU's policy, would know that a thorough study by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare showed BYU to be in complete compliance with the Civil Rights Act. Furthermore, the official letter from the Health, Education and Welfare representative stated BYU was one of the 'very finest schools' the department has visited."

Stanford will honor two basketball commitments to BYU before the new policy will be enacted.

New 'Scorpio' Publication Is Explained

Scorpio.

One name of the new magazine to be published from THE DAILY UNIVERSE office on a bi-monthly basis. Scorpio is only one name of the new publication, in that the name of the magazine will depend on the zodiac sign under which it appears. For instance, the next issue is scheduled to appear Nov. 26—hence "Sagittarius."

Plans for the magazine were conceived earlier this year with hopes of eventually expanding it to a much larger item with artwork, in depth coverage of feature items and sometimes color.

The changeable astrological theme is also symbolic of the topics of current interest which will appear in each issue.

Y Sociologists Hit Offspring Myths

continue to decrease slightly as income rises, until for the income bracket for $10,000 per year or more the childless rate is only 11.1 per cent.

Dr. Kunz and Dr. Brinkerhoff have developed several possible reasons for this decrease in childlessness as the income rises.

"First of all, the poor have poorer nutrition," stated Dr. Kunz, "which could effect them getting pregnant to begin with." "Secondly, their rate of miscarriage is higher when they do get pregnant than the wealthier group."

"The poor also have a higher rate of venereal disease and thus a higher rate of sterility than the rich. The rich further have an advantage in that with their money and education, they can get help from a doctor and simply know to go to a doctor if they are childless."

Finally, many times to get ahead, the poorer couples will not have children because of the drain of their income."

For the study to be presented in the "Journal" soon, Dr. Kunz and Dr. Brinkerhoff point out that non-white couples have a higher rate of childlessness than white couples.

For example, for wives between 35 and 34 years old in the U.S., the rate of childless couples for whites is only 12.7 per cent while non-white couples have a rate of 21.6 per cent. Dr. Kunz said that there were several practical values to the research that he and Dr. Brinkerhoff had undertaken.

"To begin with, this new information should be aired," he explained. This data is contrary to what most people believe. Secondly, this lack of information breeds discrimination concerning non-whites. Too often people simply believe the saying "Everyone knows the Negroes have a lot of kids!" It's not always true, and our research shows that."

Letters to the editor

MODESTY

Editor,

Many girls on campus appear modestly dressed, but recently on campus I've noticed some girls wearing super mini-skirts. Some reach mid-thigh and some even shorter. I realize that youth want to be accepted and be part of the "in" crowd, but in my opinion girls wearing super short mini-skirts appear "cheap" and immodest.

The Church of Jesus Christ and BYU dress standards maintain that girls dresses should be at the knee (not six to eight inches above the knee). Some girls might reply that today you can't buy dresses of proper length. If that's the case, couldn't they make their own dresses? (Most girls at BYU have found an answer to this problem).

The Savior has told us to be "in the world, but not of the world." By observing proper standards of dress and conduct, BYU can continue being "a light unto the world."

MEDIOCRE

Editor,

Just a comment about this year's Homecoming activities. As usual the Frolics included some super performances, but just as usual the program was at least 30 minutes too long. Had the mediocrity been left out, the program length would have been just right.

However, on the whole this year's Homecoming was the best I have seen in the five years I have been here. Congratulations are certainly in order for Paul Higham, those who assisted him, and for the wonderful Homecoming 1969.

Kartchner's Corner

President Answers.

Q. Will you publish a list of the top 15 groups that the students prefer, and please note that the Ventures, Turtles and Cowells were not there. Also, it seems to us that we should be getting more for our money than has been made on the first three concerts?

A. Boys from Chapman, Merrill, Stover and the Lettermen, The Association, The Smothers Brothers, Petula Ferrante & Techer, The Fifth Dimension, Sandpipers, Bae W. Band, Harry Belafonte, Roger Williams, We Five, Hal Holbro, The Cowells were no. 15. Their not coming is certainly due to lack of attempt by the people in the Social Office. Almost all these groups were contacted; in fact, negotiations were fairly far. Glen Campbell will be just turned down the offer—too much further problem is that basically was "out of it"—geograp. Following is an approximate account of the first three concerts:

	Gate receipts—approx. net profit
VENTURES:	$6,000 - $300 = $5,700
TURTLES:	$100 - $100 = $0
COWELLS:	$11,000 - $1,000 = $10,000

plus about $5000 net profit from Fieldhouse Frolics—usual largest money-maker of any year. Thus a profit of around $10,000 has been chalked up so far. Two facts of life prevent the passing of directly to students in lower-price concert tickets:

1) The groups' contract "scales" the houses for a certain gate.

2) Although the concerts so far have made money, the one spring consistently go in the hole—enthusiasm just peters out.

So this loss has to be covered. Other Social Office activities income-producing or only to some degree of actual cost. If a lot of net profit does remain, the last spring concert is usually free—the NY Rock and Roll Ensemble last year. In other words if you several events during the year—concerts and "free" things into all comes out in the long run.

This minimum ticket price must be adhered to.

Ans. Upon receipt of approximately $240 I will publish the concert and the which you consider to be functional behavior school — or anything else you wish for that matter.

Q. What happened to your proposal to eliminate complimentary tickets preferred by?

Ans. The majority of the Executive Council has decided complimentary tickets and the opportunity to buy set-aside without standing in line (preferred buying) are very little for the work in their offices. I am told that the seats thus distributed (th the playing floor) are by no means the best seats in that fieldhouse green seats are reserved for those who do want the best and wait night to get them. The Social Office, in an attempt to eliminate altogether, is preparing a mail-order system for a trial run on one up-coming concerts. Anyone with other suggestions or wishing a detailed account of finances will find Reed Halliday's door open. Homecoming the Alumni Association appropriated a section of seats—but that only happens once a year and is out of our hands think that only those people directly involved in an event receive free tickets and that there should be no preferred buying. A motion last Monday to establish essentially that policy was by the voting was as follows: For—Cam Caldwell, Brian Walton, Ferguson, Ron Kartchner, Against—Rich Chad, Reed Halliday, Hurst, Marlene Brown, Bill Haworth, Ken Murdock. Speaking of complimentary tickets, when the time comes when the Executive Council, he receives a grant-in-aid for tuition and plus $100 per semester stipend—both of which I oppose, and parking sticker—which I appreciate and use the occasional days I wife lets me take the car.

Blacks, Vietnam Noted At Forum

specific program for blacks and Vietnam were most discussed topics at Hyde Park Wednesday. gathering was the largest so far in the program. least 175 students were there. Other subjects were the Veteran's Day panel discussion with vets and the evils of capitalism.

Rocky Kuonen, a junior in advertising from Marillo, Calif., outlined a program for blacks using the same format as our current Indian program. His program would include a junior league and a technical institute as well as a festsional curriculum. "The black students would given special consideration on the basis of total man evaluation," he said. They "would not be impeded, but given encouragement and assistance..." He added that the program would be much more than a token amount of black funds.

Ear Jensen, a junior in international relations in Portland, Ore., took exception to Elder Rector's Tuesday devotional message. Elder Rector had said demonstrators would be pitifully naive to believe there would not be a slaughter when the North Vietnamese took over. Jensen said he recognized this, but that there would be more of a slaughter if the U.S. were to remain there. He found two bad assumptions in the church leader's message: one, that everybody that died in Vietnam believed they were trying to establish a United States-type democracy there, and two, that "if we remain and continue to fight we could establish" such a democracy.

Robert Starling, a senior in broadcasting from Columbus, Ga., said the media had given the American people the wrong impression about the Oct. 15 Moratorium and that the majority of Americans didn't support the Moratorium. As an example, he reported that 1700 students at Northwestern had participated but the media had neglected to say that there were 16,000 students at the school.

Committee Picks Stone As Top Businessman

Richard S. Stone, administrative assistant to the general superintendent of the Geneva Steel plant at Orem, has been chosen businessman of the month by the Better Business Committee of BYU.

The committee is honoring Stone today with a special noon luncheon at the Wilkinson Center Skyroom. The committee honors a businessman each month on the basis of contributions to business and the community.

Stone, who has had leadership positions in the Utah County steel industry, has supported economic, cultural and community improvement throughout the valley.

He was instrumental in the organization of Utah Valley Industrial Development Association of Utah and has supported causes of economic development through the state. He is currently a member of Gov. Calvin L. Rampton's Industrial Development Advisory Council.

He played a role in the decision by U.S. Steel to transfer the former Ironport property to BYU in 1968, for development as a modern industrial park complex, and has worked with university officials on all other projects.

A former president of the Utah County United Fund and presently the director and general chairman of the 1969-70 campaign, he helped organize the Utah County fund in 1964.

The present goal of the campaign is to raise $229,000 for youth guidance, health and welfare programs in Utah Valley next year.

Indian Expert Speech Set

Ed White, the nation's foremost slingshot expert who is also an Indian education specialist, will be speaker at a meeting of two Indian groups at BYU today.

The meeting, which is open to the student body and the public, will be at 7:30 p.m. in 184 of the Jesse Knight Bldg.

During the meeting, members of the Tribe of Many Feathers will entertain the audience. BYU, with 279 Indian students, leads the nation in college Indian enrollment on one campus.

Mr. White, an educational specialist at the Bureau of Indian Affairs training school at Brigham City, will talk on Indian affairs.

Sponsors of the joint meeting are the Tribe of Many Feathers, a student group supported by the BYU Indian Education Dept., and the Lamanite Service Organization, a group sponsored on campus by the Institute of American Indian Studies and Research.

'David' Tickets Available; Performance Opens Nov. 19

Tickets for Arthur Honegger's "King David" are now on sale in the ticket office of the Harris Fine Arts Center. Admission is free with a BYU activity card. All other seats cost $1.

The Oratorio Choir performance will open Wednesday, Nov. 19, and will play through Thursday, Nov. 20, in the de Jong Concert Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

A symphonic psalm, the composition is oratorio-like but differs from an oratorio in the fact that it is narrated between vocal numbers. Dr. Max Golightly, BYU professor of drama, will narrate both performances.

Marilyn Cloward, Kathy Austin and Terry McCombs will be the featured soloists for Wednesday's performance with Coleen Hognson, Rebecca Olsen and Bill Denkers singing the roles on Thursday. Linda Jensen will be the solo angel and Carolyn Baker will sing the role of the Shepherd David for both performances.

The performance will be directed by Dr. John R. Halliday of the BYU Music Dept. The Philharmonic Orchestra is under the direction of Dr. Ralph G. Laycock.

Job In Jeopardy?

By Bob Oakley
Asst. Sports Editor

Couches are a funny lot, as any coach will tell you when asked, (make sure you're smiling when asking). It may be from the especially hard work, long hours, or the insecurity of the job.

The insecurity comes when your team is not winning ball games and is looking bad while losing. Losing seasons put gray hairs on coaches and usually send them scurrying to employment agencies just in case the ax does come crashing down on them.

San Jose State, in the midst of one of its' worst seasons of football, apparently doesn't have Head Coach McMullen worried about his employment situation.

Couch McMullen showed up at the BYU-San Jose football game sporting the latest in demonstration wear, the black armband. McMullen apparently wore the black armband in support of his black athletes' protest of alleged racial policies of BYU and the Mormon Church.

Couch McMullen, in wearing armband, may even have felt it didn't support the demonstration his team may have been even more weakened by the loss of black athletes.

McMullen supported the demonstration against BYU's Church policy as did the other white football players under his command, except for one lone black San Jose football player who wore no armband.

Couch McMullen may find himself deeper in the dark hole than his current 1-7 season puts him now because he chose to protest against religious policies of the Mormon Church, which is just as important a right (that of religious freedom), as the right not to be discriminated against because of color.

San Jose State has cancelled its future football games with BYU because of the racial issue and the problems involved when playing BYU. But sometime, San Jose may play the Cougars and again, just maybe, return with a new coach instead of armbands.

Welcoming Committee, AUNO, Greeting Visiting Athlet

By Holly Smith
Assistant News Editor
Intra-school tensions and athletic competition is being pushed aside without much public notice each Friday night, through the efforts of the ASBYU

Athletics Office and a girls' campus club.

Under the direction of the Office's Welcoming Committee, 20 to 30 girls from AUNO, a culture unit, greet visiting teams and coaches every Friday night before home games.

At this time, the girls talk with the players and pass out "goodie packages" which contain fruit, cookies or cupcakes, a letter of welcome, free tickets to the Varsity Theater, dance passes, a small BYU pennant and a pass to the Games Center.

The Welcoming Committee Chairman, Layne Hinckley, explained that often times the teams cannot take advantage of all that is in the package, but "at least the gesture is there."

"We want to begin to write ahead to the schools so that they will know what is in store for them," Layne said. "This way perhaps some of these schools can plan to use more of what is in the packages."

Jan Peterson, president of AUNO, said that the club was just formed last year to fulfill the needs of the Athletics Office. Along with greeting, the club serves at athletic functions as hostesses.

Small Beginnings

"Last year we began by just greeting at basketball games," Jan noted. "We hope to do the same type of thing in baseball and other sports, as well as continue in football and basketball."

Both coordinators then went over the activities of the Committee and AUNO as the football season developed.

"Of course the girls were quite excited about the program to begin with, in that they were representing their school," Jan mentioned. "But their responsibilities have been even more magnified now that the racial issue has come up. The girls have responded fabulously."

"We all feel the program has been a success thus far," Layne concurred. "One problem with the issue that has been brought up is that we are just not understood. One of our purposes has now

"Of course we were happy when we got favorable responses to us from the CSU paper we reprinted in THE UNIVERSE."

Jan explained that game was a bit different from the University of Mexico and it was pretty until they knew who came," she said.

One UNM visitor even said that he had been informed about BYU, cheerleader said, "I'm the racists, but I've changed." Another commented, "This is all-American campus sh like."

Evidently, though, University of Arizona marked a high point in the program.

Best Group
The AUNO president said that this was the best group.

"We met them in the shop and then sat around with them for an hour," Layne said. "The blacks were very and everyone kidded around. Players even came out rooms to talk with us."

Layne added that the Latter-day Saint team said that in a team black player had said that come to school to play and not demonstrate."

Those involved, though, still assure of themselves the San Jose State game Saturday. All were because of past relations between BYU and S because of the rumor entire SIS group was wear black armbands during game.

But as this reporter involved observed, the W Program was still a success on a personal level.

"We regret what happened the game with the arm Layne said, "but we realize they were committed action before they came. I feel individual to individuals were still a success visitors felt welcomed."

Armbands Off
Layne also added that players who came in Roadway Inn wear armbands, took them off the warm reception.

"All that has happened added to the importance we're trying to accomplish good relations," Jan noted will continue to play it and set up our actions as to the attitudes of the team. Thus far it is great."

"I have to thank the Dept. and Roadway Inn, all their cooperation. Layne said, "They're really helped."

"We are doing our best," Layne said, "to promote more understanding, with our 70 little packages each week."

Forum Assembly
Forum assembly open today is Patrick Jenkins, a of the British Parliament subject will be "British-E Trade Problems."

A noted lecturer, Jenkins, will speak on this topic at 8 a.m. Fieldhouse event at that day at a Temple Assembly Hall gathering sponsored by the BYU-Sa Center.

MEMBERS OF AUNO and CAS are shown as they welcome members of the San Jose State football team (left) last Friday night. Even though some gave up other activities, the experience was

"rewarding." Sam, a San Jose sportscaster (center) was very obliging with his time to answer questions and asked a few of his own as well. "Goodies" were passed out to all the team members, including some cupcakes which were accidently crushed. They were accepted anyway. The players were also given a small BYU pennant, an apple, an orange and a UNIVERSE to help their digestion.
